At The Cleveland Museum of Art on Friday, October 6th at 8:15 p.m. Dr. Carl Nordenfalk, Director General of the Stockholm National Museum of Fine Arts and author of many articles and books on art, will give a comprehensive survey of the history of Sweden's greatest art treasure: "THE OATH OF THE BATAVIANS" by Rembrandt.

Nordenfalk will explore the results obtained when an unretouched portion of Rembrandt's THE OATH OF THE BATAVIANS was subjected to investigations by X-rays and other technical means just before the 1956 Rembrandt exhibition in Sweden. He will also discuss the mysterious circumstances connected with the Amsterdam Burgomasters' refusal of this painting and Rembrandt's subsequent retouching of the composition. He will use slides and a color film to illustrate his lecture.

This lecture is open free to the public in the Museum auditorium.

EXACT TITLE OF LECTURE Sweden's greatest art treasure: "The Oath of the Batavians" by Rembrandt. (with lantern slides and a film in color.)

AIM AND SCOPE OF LECTURE _____

The picture by Rembrandt, i.e. what remains of the unretouched painting by R. for the town Hall of Amsterdam was the subject of investigations with X-rays and other technical means just before the Rembrandt exhibition with which Sweden celebrated the 350th anniversary of the great Dutch master in 1956. Several experts on Rembrandt also contributed to a special number of Konsthistorisk Tidskrift 1956, entirely devoted to this painting. Through the film and the lecture I hope to give a comprehensive survey of the new results obtained and to discuss the still mysterious circumstances connected with the refusal of the picture by the Burgomasters of Amsterdam and Rembrandt's subsequent retouching of his composition.
